MAP NOTATIONS

1. Bible places that are neither cities, mountains, references, nor general areas are marked on each map with a small “x” – for example, see the burial place of Sarah, called...

MACHPEL-AH:10:Q-29-16

2. Modern day names that are the same as Bible names are indicated by a red underline on the modern day overlay.
3. On Paul's Journeys (Map 14), Roman sub-provinces are shown in upper and lower case italicized letters.

EXAMPLE: Lycaonia was a sub-division of GALATIA.

4. For quick estimation of approximate map distances, the locator grid blocks for each map are a specified number of miles apart.

EXAMPLE: coordinate grids for the Israel map are 5 miles apart. Simply count the number of grids between any two points, then multiply by 5 miles.

Check each map for its own miles per grid.

INDEX NOTATIONS

1. Italics = modern day locations.
2. Lower case print = city names.
3. Bold print = map page numbers.
4. Alpha/numeric print following the bold print = map grid coordinates.
5. Sub-grid coordinates: An additional number after the grid location is used especially for locating places whose names do not appear on the maps themselves. The sub-grid coordinate system is based on an imaginary grid of 25 points within the coordinate square, noted as follows:

EXAMPLE: There was not enough space to place the city of “Ananiah” on page 10. If you were reading Nehemiah 11:32 and wondered where it was located, the Master Index says, “Ananiah: 10:I-14-3,R-26-14” indicating two locations – one on the main map and one on the Jerusalem area inset. INDEX NOTATIONS Continued

Using the map coordinates for map #10, you would locate the I-14 coordinate block, then either visualize or place a city dot (using an appropriate marker) at the number 3 location (as indicated on the 25-point sub-grid system shown above).

6. Numbers in brackets on the maps “[2]” and red superscript in the Index refer to the sequential numbering of Bible names that are identical, yet were located in different locations and/or eras.
7. Names in parentheses refer to cities located in the same place, but which were called by different names through the years, such as “Shema (Jeshua?).”
8. A question mark (?) following any location indicates that the exact location is a matter of controversy among Bible scholars, although the general location is usually close. Please note that in some cases there is a wide divergence of opinion. Two question marks (??) indicate that the location is virtually unknown, although there may be various ideas among Bible experts.
